This company has been formed for the purpose of supplying the public direct with Agricultural Implements and Mackinery of the most approved construction, at manufacturers fixed prices.

With an ample capital the active co-operation of the purpose—and the possession of the best situated and most extensive premises in London, the Company now offer to the Anatralian public the following important and exclusive advantages:—

advantages:—
The power of selecting from the manufactures of ALL the leading makers.
The certainty of having only first-class goods supplied, at manufacturers prices.
The option of having the goods delivered at the principal solonial seaports, free of all risk to the purchaser, and at a charge included in price; thereby securing the goods to colonial purchasers at a cest very little exceeding that incurred by British framers.
The opportunity of procuring supplies of all other goods

The opportunity of procuring supplies of all other goods through the Company's agency, on the best terms, and in many cases free of any charge for freight or other expenses.

The facility of making remittances in colonial produce, and receiving the proceeds in goods or cash.

The utmest promptitude, regularity, and care in the execution of orders or commissions.

And reliable information and advice as to all recent improvements and requirements of particular districts and operations.

channo overs or commander.

And reliable information and advice as to all recent improvements and requirements of particular districts and operations.

The fact of the directors having been chosen from the leading manufacturing firms will afford an invaluable guarantee of the quality, workmanshin, and fitness for its mee of every article sold, and for the faithful fulfilment of the above pledges.

The catalogues of the Company are published in English, French, German, and other languages; and a special Illustrated Priced Colonial Catalogue will be forwarded, post free, upon application.

No Australian agriculturist or shipper should leave English without an inspection of the Company's steek.

Orders, accompanied by a remittance in mensy or produce, or a credit on England, will have prompt attention, addressed to the Manager of

OLLOWAY'B UINTMENT and PILLS.—Hope for all. Whatever their allments, some need despond of being cared till they have tried these inestimable remedies. Whether the disease be internal or external, spontaneous of the result of violence, if a cure be possible, Hollsway's medicaments will effect it. The severity or duration or the melady is no bar to the aucosatul influence exerted by these twin medicines, which cleanse, purify, and invigorate every solid sad fluid in the body, and completely renovate the digestion. They render every organ of secretion healthy. These admirable antidotes to disease act immediately on the absorbent system, lungs, heart, and circulation, whereby they invariably give energy, tone, and vigour to all the natural functions of life.

Net And Blank My DEPRESSION.—Selling OFF.—The undersigned is reinctantly compelled to submit his magnificent stock of fine gold Jewellery, Diamonds, Watches, Plate, Clocks, &c., as immense sacrifice, consequent on the depressed state of trade, and the inability to realise at remunerative prices. The large amount of capital necessarily required to be invested in a first-class jeweller's business should compensate the proprietor to some extent; but the extraordinary depression in the state of trade precludes the possibility of doing business advantageously. The preprietor is, therefore, naxions to relinquish the business, and turn his stock into movey, and is now fully prepared to sell, regardless of soit, and no ressonable offer will be refused.

The stock is very extensive and good. Buyers may be satured that no misre presentation will take place. All writides sold as greaten may be relied on as such, the street of the stock is the proprietor being anxious to retire from business with the seme observed retails than been his good fortune to enjoy since his commencement.

the Minister for the Interior to the prefects of France, in reference to the light literature of that country. Most of our readers are aware that the French newspapers usually contain some romance or story continued from day to day. There is also a large quantity of similar literature published by itself, and sold at a very small price—the edict states by hundreds of thousands. The general character of this literature may be inferred from the circular which states: This facile literature which seeks its success only in the cynicism of its its success only in the cynicism of its representations, the immorality of its intrigues, and the strange perversities of its heroes, has taken in our time a melancholy and dangerous development. It has invaded nearly all periodical publications, and, profiting by that "periodicity," its object has been each day to hold in suspense, and to sharpen without releasting in suspense, and to sharpen without relaxation, the ardent curiosity of the public. It has not ceased by its profusion to spread the phantasies of an imagination the most ungoverned. Even the serious journals have permitted themselves to give admission to such productions. By their means they penetrate to the intimacy of the domestic hearth, and, once admitted into the family, neither youth nor innocence are beyond the reach of their contagion.

The edict, pursuing the subject in this strain, asserts that the Government can no more permit the morals of the people to be corrupted by works of imagination than it can suffer their minds to be disturbed by political discussions Thus the prefects are recommended to warn the journals of their danger, and to proceed with severity against those who in defiance perse-

In all countries we presume there is a class of literature which answers to this description; and in every country the laws condemn publications inconsistent with public decency, or due respect for the principles of society itself. There were, and probably still are, sheps in Great Britain where works of this description are sold ; but happily they have never been regarded otherwise than as infamous, and would never be permitted to circulate without restraint even in families of ordinary moral reputation. The romantic literature of France is of a very peculiar description. Generally it is not coarse. That broad humour which rarely is associated with vice is not very common in French works of imagination. There are some illustrious exceptions, of course. In the better walks of literature we have In the better walks of literature we have sentiments as pure and language as clegantly chaste as can be shown in any writing in the world. But unfortunstely French novels are commonly tainted with the most fatal principles. They are not only charged with sensuous pictures which taint the imagination, but unhappily the plan of their story, and the situations of the parties, are often an outrage on public morality. Their are often an outrage on public morality. Their excellent characters are almost always distinguished for some gross violation of moral duty; their representations of love in its most self-denying and exalted forms, generally make their foundation the violation of the marriage tie. Everybody loves somebody that they are forbidden to love, and the interest of the tale is made to turn upon this connect between the legal duty, or ecclesiastical ties, and the aspirations of the passions. Those reto turn upon this conflict between presented as rigid upon moral considerations are almost always persons no one would choose for his acquaintance. If their rigour is not ascribed to hypocrisy and said to be associated with attentions. ciated with atrocious vice or crime, it is accom panied by such barbarism or weakness as to repel. All the interest, all the affection, of panied by such batch sale the affection, of the reader is guided towards those persons who are under solemn engagements which forbid the passions they indulge, but to which the writer has given all the colouring and warmth of virtue

It is, however, a remarkable fact, that the novels of the great English writers have an immense circulation and great acceptance in France—indicating that there is a large class of as obstinate as he has been hitherto politic—if he We see, continually, references made to the writings of Scott, and Cooper, and Marratt. Their "characters" are often MARBYAIT. Their "characters" are often referred to in French newspapers to illustrate passing events, and this could only result from passing events, and this could only result from a general familiarity with those writings. This indicates a taste which marks a transition.

If we turn to the light literature of our immediate ancestors we have very little reason to exult. Much of it was pernicious, and although it did not generally directly oppose the great moral obligations consecrated by society and religion, it depicted scenes of vice with too much ardour. A change has, however, taken place, and probably in France the same thing will and probably in France the same thing will happen. A purer style will succeed to that wild, inflaming, and voluptuous writing which has drawn forth the just indignation of Monsicur the Minister. But the increasing eagerness for works of imagination, polluted by such scenes as are described by the French edict, must be attributed in part to the political state of France. The healthy exercise of the mind by attention to political duties has been recognized. exercise of the mind by attention to political duties has been prevented. A nation cannot live without excitement. The literature which treats of science will only be read by few—that which excludes politics, or permits them to be treated only in one form, can interest none. Thus there is a wider sphere for imaginative literature, and, unfortunately, in France the friends of liberty have been too often enemies to good morals. While they have vindicated all the individual rights of man, and carried them to an extent which terminates in the dissolution of society, they have too frequently ridiculed and cast aside those moral restraints without which liberty is only a new instrument of destruction.

To supply writings which address the ima To supply writings which address the imagination—tales and novels, to call them by their proper names, is now accepted as a duty by all classes of the people. Even religious societies, whose abhorrence of romances was once prominently expressed, now furnish little novels of their own. The truth is the imagination is a faculty which always craves for satisfaction, and unless something be furnished of a higher and purer nature, multitudes will have recourse to the basest drugs. Even the highest teacher that ever came upon earth thought it not beneath Him to illustrate moral virtues by supposed incidents, depicted with all the | be all on the other side. The contest has now pure warmth of Eastern colouring. The great attraction of works of fiction is the representaattraction of works of action is the representa-tion of humanity in the conflicts and labours of life. They charm because they present to us the image of things, not unknown to us, in clearer outline—men and women who talk and toil and suffer. The writer who, entering into the mysteries of the human heart, and fathoming the depths of society cas delinests the relative the depths of society, can delineate the relation of the external and present to the internal and the past, performs a great service, providing only that labour be consecrated to the cause of truth, and be unstained by anything that would pain the rational and moral mind.

We are far from sympathising with that sort of fastidiousness which puts petticoats upon the legs of tables, and uses circumlocution in order to avoid a phrase which, in some other shape or form, might suggest another kind of idea. All this high pretence at purity is either the result of ignorance and bad taste, or of affectation and secret pruriency. We prefer a healthy, hearty mind, in whatever circle, and in either sex—that can look at things as they are and ought to be without any obtrusive modesty or affected purity. There is, however, no maxim better illustrated, whether in society or in books, than the line of

The want of decency is a want of sense

It is remarkable how the habit of reading novels and romances has increased in all circles.

The "Pilgrim's Progress," as a work of imagination, has been, of course, universally read for a century or more; but John Wesler, some hundred years ago, signified his approval of a particular novel, called the "Fool of Quality." We remember when not more than ten summers had passed over us, reading the seven or eight volumes of this work of fiction the only one admitted into the library where we found it, and that only because it bore the imprimatur of the great founder of Wesleyan Methodism. Some thirty years ago a new impulse was given to this class of writing by the publication of "No Fiction"—a work of moderate merit, but nevertheless dealing with subjects hitherto but nevertheless dealing with subjects hitherto associated only with books of less imaginative character. The number of such publications is now legion, and they are probably found in every circle, however exclusive or particular. There is, however, another sort of romance which must have fallen in the way of many of our readers—which, without affecting any par-ticular aim or dealing with matters of religious belief, are presentless full of delightful and inticular aim or dealing with matters of religious belief, are nevertheless full of delightful and instructive scenes—where moral principles are displayed in harmony with the great duties which men owe to each other. The little work of fiction, published in this journal—"The Garret Philosopher"—is a very sweet specimen of what may be done in this form—of how possible it is to present a variety of familiar scenes such as all have, with more or less distinctness, known, and which may improve alike the intellect and the heart.

WITH the best intentions in the world, and the utmost desire to act vigorously, Major-General PRATT finds himself foiled at Taranaki. It is impossible to fight an enemy that will not show. There has always been something that has stood in the way of achieving a satisfactory victory over the rebel Maories. At first it was the want of a sufficient number of soldiers; then it was the want of artillery; then it was the necessity of protecting the town; then it was some impediment thrown in the way by the civil authorities at Auckland. But all these difficulties have been one by one removed.

The military force of all Australia has been oncentrated; five ships of war are on the coast with their heavy guns; the town, relieved of the presence of all the defenceless population, is only a narrow intrenchment that does not any only a narrow intrenchment that does not any longer require special care; the highest military authority in this quarter of the world is personally in command, and has come to a full understanding with the civil power;—and yet a decisive victory seems as far off as ever, simply because it is impossible to get up a fight. All the materials are ready for a great triumph, except—the enemy! If WIREMU KINGI would only have had the goodness to have remained in his pah on the Waitara, Major-General Pratt would have been so happy to have shown him the way on the wattara, major-teneral PRATT would have been so happy to have shown him the way out of it! But the graceless barbarian would not stay to be surrounded. In nothing has he shown his astuteness more than in measuring the force opposed to him, and retreating when he was overpowered. He has none of that chivalry which reckons it the part of bravery to resist all odds, and he does not object to seizing retreats only inch by inch, and if he can hold his followers together and keep up their spirits, he may carry on a local war for years, even if he fails to rally a large body of natives ound his standard.

Major-General PRATZ has at his command Major-General Part has at his command two thousand men, besides five ships of war. Kinct's following is not estimated at the most at more than fifteen hundred, and many of these are at present dispersed attending to their cultivations. Yet though the numerical superiority, as well as the superiority in arms, rests so decisively with the British, all that a little army of fifteen hundred men could do, on a four days' trip, was to destroy some empty pahs, to lose one man, one rifle, and one officer's sword, without, so far as is absolutely known, doing any mischief to the enemy. This is very provoking, and it is easy to blame the commander for results so inadequate to the magnitude of the expedition. Yet rashness might have lost as many lives as in the last fatal affray at Puketakaure, and without any corresponding advantage. There can be little doubt that Major-General Parar would have readily ordered an attack on any pah or any number of pahs, however carefully they may have been constructed and fortified, and the experience of the war has already shown that a little risk in storming pahs would in the first instance have been a great economy of life and treasure. If the first pah on the Waitara two thousand men, besides five ships of war. first instance have been a great economy of life and treasure. If the first pah on the Waitara and the pah at the Waireka had thus been boldly and the pah at the Waireka had thus been boldly attacked, instead of being shot at from a distance, the balance of victory would have undoubtedly inclined more to our favour than it does at present, and the rebellion, if not suppressed, would have been discouraged in its earlier manifestations. But there is a great deal of difference between storming a pah and atorming the bush. In the former case the attacking party is sure to find the enemy, whatever may be the resistance offered, and a hand to hand struggle may be certainly counted on. But by plunging into the tangled undergrowth of the bush it is by no means certain that even a glimpse of the enemy will be obtained, much less the chance of a personal encounter. In storming a pah, the soldier octained, much less the chance of a personal encounter. In storming a pah, the soldier practised in the use of the revolver, the cuttass, or the bayonet, would contend at an advantage over the enemy armed with nothing but a musket. But in the bush the advantage would be all on the other side. The contest has now passed the stage in which purely ndilitary movements are of any avail. It has entered on another stage, for which quite a new strategy is required. Military evolutions are of no use among the flax and fern, and even military drill and discipline give but few advantages. Bush warfare calls for personal fitness in individual men, not for manœuvres. It is a succession and series of single-handed contests. It requires a man to be a good shot, quick of observation, nimble in his movements, and of ready resource and his movements, and of ready resource, and then suitably clothed, and armed with a good then suitably clothed, and armed with a good rifle, a European ought to be at least the equal of the Maori even in the bush. But neither commander nor soldiers are prepared to carry on such a guerilla warfare till the contest is decided.

Those who are over-ready to blame Major-General Prattr should remember that to subdue native tribes posted in a difficult country has always been one of the greatest to be a subdue to the greatest country has always been one of the greatest perplexities to military men. France in Algeria, Russia in the Caucasus, Great Britain at the Cape of Good Hope have all had the same task to contend with, and have all got along very slowly, at great expense, and with frequent losses. To clear the country, and make military roads through it, is a long job; yet without that, an obstinate enemy can be only destroyed piecemen! only destroyed piecemeal.

It was unfortunate that Major-General Pratt should have been unable to bring away the body of the only one of his men who fell, as the poesession of the field and the capture of arms, to however small an extent, is construed into victory. Yet, if to have recovered that body and the man's rifle, together with the officer's sword that was dropped, would have cost several lives, it was right in the General not to have paid the fine. For the troops to have approached again as close to the bush as they were when they received the first volley would have been almost certain to have caused fresh casualties, vithout the prospect of any equivalent advantage being gained.

Amid all the discouragements of the war, it

Amid all the discouragements of the war, it is at any rate satisfactory that the insurrection still retains its local character. There is still war nowhere but at Taranaki. This is almost more than could have been hoped for, considering the inflammable nature of the native temperament. The dilatory way in which the war has been carried on—the apparent timidity with which native aggression has been met, the complete ruin that has been brought on the British power which that fact seems to typify—all this must have acted powerfully on the native mind, and furnished a strong temptation to join in the revolt. To some ex-tent this effect has been produced, and there has been defection even among the most trusted friendly natives. But the conflagration has not, as yet, spread so widely as might reasonably have been feared, and this may at least be re-garded as a hopeful sign that the great body of garded as a hopeful sign that the great body of the native population are averse to a prolonged contest with the British power.

There is a possible source of wider trouble in the present position of the king movement. It is said that the Waikatos, though still at peace with us, are bent upon electing POTATAU's son to the Maori sovereignty, and it is also said that the GOVERNOR has forbidden it. The inthat the GOVERNOR has forbidden it. The interference may be resented, and it can hardly, at present, be backed up by force. Threats are powerless, if not capable of enforcement, and only serve to reveal weakness, and draw on further complications. A quarrel with the Waikatos about the election of a king would necessitate the total abandonment of Taranaki, and the concentration of the entire military force for the protection of the capital. The Government is in a dilemma. To recognise the Maori royalty as a serious thing is to infringe on the QUEEN's sovereignty; yet to forbid it en the QUEEN's sovereignty; yet to forbid it authoritatively is likely to put that sovereignty in actual peril, or at least to tempt a long and ruinous war in order to vindicate it.

Fitzroy Ward.—The election of an alderman to represent Fitzroy Ward in the Municipal Council took place yesterday, when Mr. Thomas Spence was duly returned, some thirty or forty votes having been recorded in his favour. It will be seen by this very small number that there was no opposition to his election. The votes were taken at the Supreme Court, Darlinghurst, by Mr. Alderman Sutton, who was cheered by the presence of a few of the city councillors. Save these and the poll clerks there were no others present, except when a stray voter came in to exercise the privilege granted to him in consideration of paying rates and taxes. ORDINATION OF FOUR CLERGYMEN.

The Ordination Service, announced as about to take place at St. Andrew's Church (the temporary cathedral), was held by the Bishop of Sydney, yesterday, in the Pariah Church of St. Philip. The Lord Bishop of Sydney had, we understand, intimated to the Rev. George King, the minister of St. Andrew's, his intention to hold an ordination in that church, as being the temporary cathedral, on St. Matthew's Day, the 21st instant, and that the service would be performed by his lordship's chaplains, the canons, and the Very Rev, the Dean of Sydney, whom, in virtue of his right as bishop of the diocese, he had appointed to preach the sermon. The Rev. George King having objected to this arrangement, was again informed by the Bishop's Secretary that his Lordship had settled such appointments with regard to the order of Divine service, as would render Mr. King's assistance unnecessary. And upon Mr. King's again communicating his intention of taking part in the service, he was officially admenished that his doing so would be considered an interference, and obstruction of the Diocesan's authority, and as constituting a grave ecclesiastical offence. About two hours before the appointed time of Divine service, Mr. King notified by letter to the Bishop's Secretary his determination to lock the Church. At 11 o'clock, the Bishop, attended by the Dean, his chaplains and secretary, arrived at the cathedral, and found the entrance and the church closed. His lordship, being assured that Mr. King's expressed determination had been practically carried out, caused the following notice to be given to the assembly, and posted upon the gate. The congregation, which had been waiting for some time, them adjourned to St. Philip's, when the service will exceeding the six Cathedral against the Bishop, the service will exceeding the six Cathedral against the Bishop, the service will exceeding the six Cathedral against the Bishop, the service will exceeding the six Cathedral against the Bishop, the service will exceedi ORDINATION OF POUR CLERGYMEN.

The service commenced soon after eleven o'clock a.m., Morning Prayer being read by the Bishop's chaplain, the Rev. R. L. King, of Parsmatta, the sermon was preached by the incumbent of the church, the Very Rev. the Dean of Sydney, from the following text:—"And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." and Timothy, III. 2. The Rev. W. M. Cowper proceeded, at the commencement of his discourse, to urge that in this passage the apostle gave a plain and direct command to Timothy, personally, and in the exercise of an episcopal authority, to take proper steps for the continuance of a regular succession in the ministry. He stated that he authority which Timothy thus so evidently exercised over the Church of Ephesus, was, in every essential particular, spiceopal; and in support of this view the reversed geniteman referred to several other passages in St. Paul's two Epistles to Timothy, which he considered to have a direct bearing upon the subject. Having pointed out that Timothy was always individually addressed by the Apostle as respected the exercise of his authority, and having also shewn that the responsibility of his sacred office was something personal and peculiar—and not conjointly exercised with any college of Presbyters—the preacher then drew attention to the-fact that what they had to consider was the question of specific duties, and not that of any mere name. It was no argument at all to say that the name of bishop was not expressly and exclusively mentioned as applicable to the performance of those supervising and controlling duties which Timothy was called upon to discharge; as the Illustrious Hooker had remarked, things were always more ancient than their names. After some further observations tending to above that the episcopal system was the true and original form of church government, and he apostolic mode by which the maintenance and apostolic mode by when the supervised of and the Gospel (St. Matthew ix. 30) by the Bishop. The "Oath concerning the Queen's Supremacy" was then administered to each descon; which done, the Bishop continued to read the office, the parties to be ordained priests pleedging themselves to the performance of the duties which were about to devolve upon them. At the Imposition of Hands, the Priests who joined with the Bishop in that set were the Rev. Robert Allwood, the Rev. W. H. Walsh, the Rev. W. M. Cowper, and the Rev. R. L. King. The Registrar of the Diocese was in attendance. After their ordination, the newly ordained priests received the Holy Communion. About one hundred persons were present, amongst whom were many of the Episcopal clergy, besides those who officiated on the occasion.

The War at Tahanaki.—We have received some further reliable information from Taranaki by a private source, one portion of which is of the highest importance, but which seems to have escaped the attention of the local journals. It is said that the Taranaki and Ngatiruanui tribes have quarrelled, and that the stronger party had burned the pahs of the weaker—which was the stronger tribe is not specified. It is likely, therefore, since these rebels have fallen out, that the settlers may come by their own. The return of the Waikates to their own country since their quarrel with Wiremu Kingi will tend also to embarrass that chief considerably, and we may expect to hear by the next mail of further defection in the ranks of the rebels. It will be remembered that when Major-General Pratt returned to Taranaki from Auckland, with full powers to prosecute the war, he ordered the embarkation of all the women and children in the settlement. But on the day fixed for their departure to Nelson, many of the women hid themselves and refused to go, and thus somewhat embarrassed the commanding officer. New Plymouth is said to be completely entreuched, and there is no fear of the Maories entering the town.

THE VICTORIA PRESS AND THE KIANDRA GOLD-FIELDS.

GOLD-FIELDS.

To the Resitor of the Herald.

Sin,—The tone of the Press of our neighbouring colony of Victoria, as well as the facts addaced, are so utterly at variance with the truth, as well as altogeutterly at variance with the truth, as well as along-ther one-sided in its statements, that I cannot rest satisfied until I attempt to give to the digging popu-lation of these colonies something that may be taken as candid, fair, and reliable. I have not read in any of the Victorian papers or publications anything to the ascantage of the Snowy River diggings, and, therefore, living as I do in the midst of the miners here, and knowing how falsely coloured our neigh-bours' allegations have been, I cannot but arrive at the conclusion that the more sensible and thinking diggers of Victoria, instead of being misled by such filmsy sophistry, will at once see that there is some-filmsy sophistry, will at once see that there is some-thing of self-interest actuating upon the Press, and through that upon the mercantile community. It is a well authenticated fact that a man can obtain £1 per week here for digging for another, and that living can be had for 35s. per week, so that a man can live well and save two pounds per week at the worst of times. But when I assert that out of some 60,361 ounces which have been obdiggers for that time was not more than 1000, it will be evident that 1775 ozs. 6 dwts. and 11 grs. is the weekly produce, which divided by 1000 diggers will give 1 oz. 15 dwts. 12 grs., or at £3 10s. per ounce, £6 4s. 3d. in money per man per week. Now, this is not so very bad; and I want to know, in all fairness, from our neighbours, if they can show anything better. This is made out, favourable, and the days comparatively short; so that should the weather continue fine, as I think it bids should the weather continue fine, as I think it bids fair to do for months to come, and should we have a fair increase to our experienced miners of men with a little money in their pockets, who can turn to deep sinking and lay out a little before they can expect a sure and payable return, then I think we will be able to show our neighbours another stubborn statement, which, if there is to be had anything like fair play from the Victoria Press will serve to place these much-abused rold-fields in that position which their intrinsic merit gold-fields in that position which their intrinsic merit

The outery was doubtless made first of all by a class of miserable, penniless, and half-clad soi-sissen miners, who, unsuccessful in Victoria, perhaps, fied here as to a city of refuge, in the depth of winter, without a shilling to fall back upon. The consequence was natural. They could not remain without means, and they could not, therefore, try to open a claim for themselves, which might take a fortnight or three weeks to show a favourable return for their labour. And upon the letters and representations of such as these, the impartial Press of Victoria conjured up such a bugbear that I am told by some who have since come from that colony, that it is not safe for the sanity of any one to speak of coming to these gold-

I held in my hand two days ago as fine a specimer of a quaris nugget, weighing fifty-six ounces, as I have yet seen. I have also had in my tee hands the 320 ounce nugget, which is not, however, in beauty a patch upon the other. There must be a quartz reef somewhere near, and we only want men of experience and capital to find it out. The quarts of the fifty-six ource nugget was almost pure white, and as smooth as a pebble, and larger than one's hand. It has been, I am sorry to say, brokes up and sold. It would have been worth much mor as a specimen in a jeweller's shop.

I trust I have said enough to show the people of Sydney, at least, and particularly the experienced miner, the fatility of the statements contained in the Melbourne Hersid and weekly Age, as well as other newspapers in the sister colony; and all we sak for this field is fair play and no favour, and certainly no misrepresentation; then, I think, all we have to do is to go to work, and allow the facts to speak for themselves. all we have to up a facts to speak for themselves.

WATER POLICE COURT.

WATER POLICE COURT.
Franay.

Before the Water Police Magistrate.
There were three parties on the sheet for drunkentess in the streets, each of whom was fined 10s., or to be imprisoned for twenty-four hours.

John Williams, master of the schooner Margaret and Mary, was fined 10s. with costs, for neglecting to have a mate or seaman in charge of the deck whilst the vessel lay in the harbour.

Frederick Robinson and Hannah Robinson, his wife, of Lane Cove, were charged, on the information of George Brooke, with having wiffully, identically, and illegally entered upon premises in his occupation, and situate at Lane Cove. Complainant not appearing, the case was dismissed; plaintiff to pay costs.

Carl Batkin, a seaman belonging to the Danish Larque Wilhelmine, was sentenced to one week's hard labour in gaol, for wilful disobedience of lawful commands.

James Lunt, master of the United States ship Eliza and Ella, appeared to answer the complaint of David pence, a searnan, who stated in his information that defendant unlawfully detained certain wearing appeare, complainant's property. Spence deposed in evidence that, in June last, he joined this vessel at San Francisco, taking his clothes on board on the 20th of that month. The day after they went to sea he was found fault with for not turning out quickly enough, and the mate struck him. Spence then told the mate that he would not submit to be ill used; in reply defendant said he would order Spence into irons, to be lashed up and Sogged Spence said he did not think that would be allowed on beard ship. In accordance with this threat, Spence was lashed up by the arms, and whilst they were fastening him, the mate kicked him. He was afterwards taken into the cabin, and the, captain threatened that on meeting with the first ship they would turn him out, and that he should not have his clothes. Sponce objected to this. Defendant called him a Sydarg convict, struck him with a rope on the face, and when they sighted the Daniel Wester pilot boat, about forty miles from the Californian coast, he was hauled over the ship's side, and with a bowline lowered into the boat, his clothes being kept on board. The pilot told Spence that he should tand him on a small island where there was a tighthouse, and that he would have to remain there until some vessel called to take him off. Spence reached San Francisco in a schooner, and then shipped in a French vessel coming to Sydney, so as to see defendant about his clothes. Since arriving here he had applied for his things, but defendant refused to give them up, etating that there was nothing on board belonging to him. Since defendant had been served with a summons he had given up about £2 10s, worth of the property, and now detained goods to the value of £6 7s. When leaving the ship he asked the steward to get the things for him, but the steward ead the could not find them—some one had taken them. Jacob Myers, a seaman belonging to the Eliza and Ella, stated that complainant had his clothes on board the ship, and when he was put into the pilot boat they were not given to him. The steward deposed that all the articles brought to him, after Spence left the ship, were given up to him yesterday, and another seaman, who brought them from Spence's borth, said that these were all the things he could find belonging to complainant. The evidence of the chief officer also supported the statement. The case was dismissed.

Several summons cases were adjourned, and two trivial complaints dismissed.

A resure meeting was held and eventing [Wolfarendery], at Mr. Marches's, Pittroy Blotsl, and all the Pair. Saman Assonage, J.F., the returning-officer for Windsor, by adversionment on the requisition of about forty formassecoids, it commides the describility of centabilishing a Elifa Guerge of Windsor. The meeting was named the object was to discuss the describility of forming a Volunteer Ride corps in the district of Windsor. He believed the requisition had been signed most willingtly which he thought significant the describility of the march and the object was to discuss the describility of the march and the object was to discuss the describility of the march and the object was to discuss the describility of the object with the could be a subject of the control of the object with the could not retrain from remarking that he entirely approved of the innerment of the object with the could not retrain from remarking that he entirely approved of the innerment of the object with the could not retrain from remarking that he entirely approved of the inner from her case; no man described to have a home if he were not prepared to defend it, as well as being ready with others to maint all whose they had not been of a unanimous character. Localisman, September 187a.—On Monday morning, about half-past seven o'clock, it commenced raining here, with every appearance of its being a thorough wet day. Soon after eight it was pouring in torrents, accompanied by thunder and lightning; and by nine o'clock the drains on either side of the road, which are in some places four feet deep, and from ten to twelve feet wide, were running bank high; the creek at the bottom of the town was rushing over the road with tremendous velocity, and in a very short time was fully 150 feet wide. When the mail couch, on its way from the railway to Singleton, reached the creek, and Mr. Winch (who was driving) saw the height of the water, he wisely turned back—not attempting to cross. After a short time, however, being anxious to deliver the mails according to contract, he again came down to the creek with the determination of crossing, but had hardly got into the current when one of the leading horses shied, and with that and the force of the water, hornes and clouch were carried some twenty feet off the read, and deposited among the ruins of the old bridge, where they providentially stack fast, for had they gone a foot or two further they must have been af over in deep water; as it was, the polera had little more than their heads above water. By the prompt exertions of constables Leonard and Watson, a rope was thrown te the coach, and by that means the occupants were specially rescued from their perilous situation. The leading horses had by that time become very restive, and, getting entangled in the harness, lost their footing, and were both drowned in a very few minutes. For some time it was very doubtful whether the polers would not abare the same fate; but as the water began to fall, three er four young men managed, with some difficulty and no exactional dip, to wade out to the coach, and by cutting away the pole and harmans released them.

[VRON OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

BETTERBER 18TH.—Considerable excitoment has been caused by the botteming of two or three claims about half-a-mile below "Gard's" public-house, at the Lower Turon, and which has caused a great rush from the neighbouring diggings. It appears that the sinking is about thirty feet, and very hard and difficult, but the great quantity of washing stuff, upwards of seven feet, giving from three to four pennyweights to the tub, raises the expectations of the duggers to the highest degree; upwards of a mile of the river has already been marked out. My informant, Mr. J. Gard, offered £500 for two of the claims owned by "Lowe's" party, who took £50 value of gold from the bottom of the ring of one of the claims. A Chinaman has the next claim, which has turned out very rich. The partice sinking on the brow of the hill away from the river have reached the washing stuff at a greater depth; they are satisfied with the result. This will prove that the old Turon has not yet given up all her treasures.

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sir.,—In answer to a letter which appeared in your issue of day, signed by Charles F. Michler, M.D., I would beg to offer a few observations thereon, as to the correct version of the death of Henry Lee, taken from the sworn testimony of the witnesses, for it appears the doctor labours under an apprehensisn that he was severely censured by the jury, which is not the case, they only regretted that he did not make some endeavours to restore animation, which the doctor denies, remarking that he did make every effort, and applied the usual remedies, which is contradicted. Can the doctor explain why he did not remove the wet clothes from off the body, if he applied all the usual remedies in cases of drowning? And also, can the doctor explain how he accomplished his work in so short a time, as it appeared he only remained a few minutes? The constable did not inform me that the doctor had material evidence to give at the inquest, nor can I comprehend now what that evidence might have been, judging from the facts that he knew nothing of the occurrence till called, and pronounced the man dead, and the jury were satisfied as to the cause of death.

During the inquest one of the jurymen remarked, when regretting the doctor did not make some attempt at resuscitation, that he knew of a case where a man was a longer time under the water than deceased, and to all appearance dead, and was restored to life by the doctor attending to the man in a proper manner.

Your obedient servant,

JOHN S. PARKER, Coroner.

City Coroner's Office, Sydney, 21st September.

To the Editor of the Herald.

To the Editor of the Hereld.

Sir.,—If Dr. Richler was surprised at the censure passed upon him by the jury at a late inquest, I am a great deal more surprised at a few of the doctor's extraordinary assertions. Being one of the three men who assisted in landing the unfortunate deceased, and the very man who called upon the doctor for his services in the time of need, I need not applogise for correcting some of the doctor's statements. Accordingly, giving him every credit for his prompt attendance, and allowing a quarter of an hour to have elapsed from the time I went in quest of medical assistance to his arrival fon the "spot—still, I maintain that the deceased could not have been more than ten minutes immersed, as the evidence of all witnesses will tend to prove, for barely fifteen minutes had passed since he was alive in the store till he was taken from the water.

The doctor seems to have forgotten the exclamations that greeted him when he did arrive, viz., "You are just three minutes too late!"—others said "five minutes,"—showing that it was but just five minutes or so before that the signs of mination had ceased, I do think, however, that the doctor has reason to complain of not being summoned to the inquest; for, whatever may be the rule here, I believe that medical evidence is valued above all other else where. Perhaps our worthy coroner will deign to give an explanation why that difference should exist.

But when the doctor asserts that at the inquest he could have proved that he used "all the remadies" our worthy coroner will deign to give an explanation why that difference should exist.

But when the doctor asserts that at the inquest he could have proved that he used "all the remedies recommended by the Faculty in cases of the kind," I think that the means of the said Faculty must be very limited, for any one could practise them on a dosen patients in the course of an hour, and most probably with the same success.

Again, he says the body was "cold, rigid, and lifeless." Lifeless it certainly was, but neither coid nor rigid paths first exclamation of his unfortunate wife being, "Oh, he is quite warm yet!" and that one after the doctor's departure.

I will only add, that if the suggestions contained in "Quid's" letter be acted on, they would be the means of saving many a fellow creature from an untimely cnd.

Your obedient servant,

JOHN TAYLOR.

THE RURAL POLICE.

THE RURAL POLICE.

To the Editor of the Beraid.

Sin,— Having been in the Police in the bush, will you permit me to correct one or two inaccuracies in your correspondent's letter yesterday. Where I was, £40 was allowed for horse money, divided thus—£20 to chief constable, and £10 each to the two men, and no Government paddock for the horses. In the settled districts, the clothing issued is the same as a London policeman's, which mounted men cannot wear. In the unsettled districts a few pence per week is allowed instead of clothing.

Two per cent. is deducted from pay towards the Superannuation Fund.

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

To the Editor of the Herald.

Sin,—Now that the Volunteer movement appears to form itself into something like a tangible shape, I think it would be advisable, before stepping too far, to put some little check upon our advancement by inquiring what will be really expected from us after swearing the oath of allegiance. So long as we are at liberty to play at hide and seek—come when we like and leave at our will, it is a first-rate pastime; but immediately we are bound, and ordered to do so and so, swearing the oath of allegiance. So long as we are at liberty to play at hide and seek—come when we like and leave at our will, it is a first-rate pastime; but immediately we are bound, and ordered to do so and so, the gilt falls from the gingerbread, and a very gloomy picture is presented to our view. And I have no doubt but that much unpleasantness might result from the over-aanguinity of cager volunteers, who, like true Britons, are willing to wield the sword, but who, nevertheless, must not entirely close their eyes, to oppose reason, before the bright radiance of imaginary glory.

It is necessary that some proclamation should be issued giving a clear and comprehensive statement of the duties the volunteer is expected to fulfil, and the full responsibility he takes upon himself by becoming partially subject to military control, and whether he can be called upon at any time to leave his business and attend for the sake of discipline. It would be also advisable to make known how, in the event of change of residence, the alteration could be effected from one company to another without causing annoyance, as it is highly probable there will be much rivalry between the companies, and an advanced body would not feel much homoured by the admittance of, perhaps, a nawly joined volunteer.

The Volunteer movement is one founded on a proper spirit of British pluck, and the young men, both here and at home, join willingly hand and heart for its advancement; but surely there should be some generous-hearted sympathy from those whom we may call our employers, and certainly expect from them some time during the day—one hour, or even less—for drilling and practising the necessary acquirements of a soldier. For such a cause our few telsure hours should not be spent in the defence of our salopted land without having a helping hand in return for the security and comfort they would obtain; but in the event of this boon not being granted, the willingness of many of the loyal subjects of our Queen to uphold her laws and defend our the machinery measurement for threwing a stream of water. My reason for this is, in order to loose so lighting as possible in gesting to the scene of action and bringing the fire engine into operation. Such a vessel should be moored in some control part of the harbour, and should be manned by a volunteer crew, one of whem, at least, should remain constantly on board as a watch. Upon the alarm of fire, it would be his duty to commence getting up steam and to make the individual properties. Such a start should be made for the scene of action, which might be reached the engine brought into play by hand power long before steam could be brought to render any service. It would then be necessary to consider what measures would be sufficient to extinguish the burning vessel, perhaps ahe would want towing away from a wharf or other vessels; this could easily be effected if the steam were sufficiently up. Perhaps the fire might be only slight, and the engine worked by hand-power would be sufficient to extinguish it, or it might want steam—power to accomplish this; or perhaps the case would be extreme, and the only alternative would be customed and the operation, and would soon decide the question.

Such a vessel, now that the volunteer movement is on foot, would serve admirably to train and exercise as an accomplish that is of perhaps the case of shipwreck, or when fire occurred in a warehouse of shipwreck, or when fire occurred in a warehouse of shipwreck, or when fire occurred in a warehouse of shipwreck, or when mediate predecessor. Up to this period the aspect of things was not of the most chearing hind for the friends and backers of the Champion Eleven. Diver and Caffyn were now the observed, but the latter, in making a determined effort to enlarge his score, was caught by Anderson at short log. At the fall of the fifth wicket thirty-six runs were declared. With Diver the score-sheet received considerable sugmentations, but he at length gave in to the joint efforts of Tarrant and Tinley. The batting of Lockyer, Creax, and Lillywhite was not of that character and importance to require an elaborate analysis. Stephenson stood his ground "successfully against all attacks, and achieved the largest score throughout the innings. Jackson, the last man occupied but little time in accumulating eleven, but at length, sustepping the bounds in order to punish one of Tinley's slows, Mr. Lockhart, a most expert wicket-keeper, put the sticks inte disorder, and the first innings was brought to a close for 83 runs.

The Champion Eleven then took the field, and made such havoc among their opponents that they were disposed of for listle more than three-sand-a-haif runs per man. Anderson resisted the attack nobly, and brought out his bat with seventeen runs. The bowling and fielding were magnificent, not a single point was disregarded that would tend to further their interests and check the enward march of the opposition. With forty-three in hand, the Champions again addressed themselves to the scorers. But in this second venturs their star of success began to dim. Four of the best men went out without s run. Lillywhite, Lockyer, and Carpenter—a glorious trio—contributed five only. Pive runs for seven such men might well cause a change in public opinion, and the second eleven from this time rose rapidly in the favour market. Stephenson lose, his wicket in consequence of it: Causar fell to Tarrant: but Grundy bade both bowlers defiance. The second score of the Champions amounted to 57.

With a round hundred in view the England Eleven went style for the first of the pleasure of rashing with the relation of the peoper in the process of existing the process of existing the process of the street of the peoper in the process of the process o

the nation at large, if this element could be infused into it. It would be a benefit to the Volunteer movement, because it would secure its popularity and durability: it would be a benefit to the nation at large because it would supply a want which is already painfully felt by large and important classes of the population, and which will be felt more and more as the nation grows richer and more populous. This is the want of out-door amusements. Few of us probably can read, without a pang of regret, the eloquent descriptions given by Lord Macaulay and other picturesque writers of the wide heaths, wild and extensive woods, and desolate marshes which were prominent features in English scenery two centuries ago, and which invested many occurrences which are at present utterly proasic (travelling, for example) with a tinge of adventure and romance, whilst they conferred upon pursuits which are now more elaborate amusements—auch as hunting and shooting—something of the real importance which belongs to them in unsettled countries. Atmost all our modern amusements have become so artificial and expensive that the great bulk even of the easy classes of society are deberred from taking part in them. Many a man in good circumstances who has received from nature sturdy limbs and active habits, cannot afford to shoot or to hunt, and is reduced to walk along the high road if he wants exercise.

Volunteering might be so managed as to supply this want effectually. It might and ought to be made the foundation of the physical education of as many of the population as have the wish or the power to receive such training. It is ho doubt trus that a man may be a good soldier without trus that a man may be a good soldier without the property of the property of the property of the part of the property of the propert provide for the expense, and the connexisur of the club with the copys would at one guarantee its respectability and give the members sympathy and a corporate feeling. With reference to the use of the beyonet, asme such arrangement as this is positively necessary. The dut in itself is an excellent thing, but no one can really understand its use unless he practises it against an antagonist.

anatogenist. Another mode in which volunteering might be applied to physical education would be by the establishment of volunteer camps. In the course of this aumner sany hundred young men analy of them volunteers — will make walking tours over every part of Burope in which they can of an adventure. They will walk twenty or thirty miles a day, carry knapackus on their backs, and sleep sometimes in rough inns, sometimes in chalets, and every now and then on a hillaide or half-way up a Swias mountain. This they will do simply from the love of excitement and exertion, pending for the indugence of their taste sums varying with their mean—probably from £10 upwards. Wy should ast this disposition be turned to the account of the Volunteer movement? There are still in Ragland a certain number of unenclosed heaths, downs, and commons. It would not cost much to establish on some of these tents and a mess for all who liked to jeis. Under the care of men who knew what real campaigning was, men encamped for a month or a fortnight in such a position might learn an immense number of leasons which would be in themselves extremely interesting, and which in an actual campaigning might be invaluable. They might learn to pitch their own tents, to light their own fire, to cook their own food, to make themselves comfortable in a bivouce, or to abelter themselves from the rain. They might learn how to advance ever entargled country, how to take advantage of endosure, and how to occupy and improve positions of natural strength. They might be instructed—for they would be men of more than the average intelligence—in the nature of battles and manageures, and might be shown how a helice, a wood, or a shed might be turned to account in case of need. In short they might learn all that can be learned of a campaign without actual fighting. It is impossible to over-estimate the degree of interest and resity which this would give to their usual drill; said in a real campaign the men who had had this training would be invaluable instructors to t

The Lamento Flax Discuss.—The Fase Courier says they have received the following letter, dated 8th September, from a gentleman whose statements can be relied upon:—"A new rush has taken place at the Lambing Platt of a place called Stony Creek, shout four miles from Chance Gully, which promises to turn out well. In fact, it is the opinion of the most experienced in mining matters that it will be very little inferior to the Snowy; and there is no want of water there, so that it is likely to become a summer diagings." Since our last issue we learn that many of the unemployed in this neighbourhood, as well as persons who have returned from the Snowy, diaprons have been promulgating a report that it will not pay for working, and that even in the event of it being remunsative that it will not pay for working, and that even in the event of it being remunsative there is no water to wash with. We fully believe that these statements are utterly false. These diggings are yet in their infancy, and it would be impossible to prognosticate over what extent of country they may be worked profitably; but two things are very certain that the healtest of gold exist over a very large area, and that in the greater number of places as yet tried the metal has been found in quantities which well repaid the labour. It is, therefore, not oursegeous to hold out encouragement to further exploration. As to the assertion of the want of water, it is a weak invariant of the enemy. It is very certain that many a gold-field, especially a new one, has its active and interested supporters. We desire to stand on neutral ground, and inform the public of the truth a far as we are fable to accurate an outporters. We desire to stand on equilibrium, and the profit of the profit of the profit of the p

Non.—An attentiement having appeared in your paper, setting forth "that the Lord Bishop of Sydney would hold an ordination in St. Andrew's temporary (Cathedral on this day," it becomes necessary for me to state the reason why the ceremony was not performed in that church.

I received a letter from Mr. H. K. James, secretary to the Bishop of Sydney, dated 13th September, 1850, announcing the Bishop's intention to hold an Ordination in St. Andrew's, on Friday, the 21st instant, and adding—"The services will be conducted by his Lordship's chaplains and the very Rev. the Dean."

To this communication I sent the susual acknowledgement; and then continued—

You state that "the services will be performed by his Lordship's chaplains and the very Rev. the Dean." With reference to this portion of your communication, I beg to say that I shall be prepared, D.V., as minister of the Cathedral Church, to perform the appointed services; and at the same time, shall be most much state, and I do se respectfully, that I shall not recognise any individual as Dean of St. Andrews, who has not received his appointment directly from her Majesty the Queen.

Your faithfully,

St. Andrew's Parsonage, September 15, 1869.

A rejoinder from Mr. James followed a few days afterwards, informing me "that the Bishop desired him to let me know that, as the services on that occasion will be strictly special, the Bishop will not require the assistance of the parochial minister."

My reply to this letter was in the following words: —Bir, $0., $0., Tou should have know that I am not only the "parochist minister," as you are pleased to designate me, but also the misster of the Cathedral Charch, and as such an responsible for all the services both special and general, which are performed in it, and I be for repeat, as I stated in my former letter, that in my capacity as such minister, it shall (D. V.) perform the portion of the services which have always failes to my yart th all former ordinations.

Any repay to the above communication was as follows:

St. Andrew's Parsonage, September 20, 1860.

Bir,—I received your programme of the Bishop's meditated inseit towards me is my own church, and before my own congregation, and have reached, in consequence of that communication, to look the church against the party which have been guilty of each indicaretion, in order to prevent any unseemly and improper disturbance in the Bishop of the Got. You will be piessed, perhaps, to insure the Bishop of my determination in this matter, that the ordination may be held alsowhers.

Your messenger delivered your letter at all o'slock last night, and immediately walked away, easing that so enswer was required. I reply at the earliest possible mement.

At eleven o'clock to-day, when the Bishop's two.

At eleven o'clock to-day, when the Bishop's two law advisers and Mr. James stood before the door of the church, I stated, for the information of the Bishop, that I was still prepared to open the church, and assist the Bishop in the service, both to read, and, if necessary, to preach also; but they recommended a different course, refusing to slier the arrangements made previously by the Bishop, and I deemed it prudent, under the circumstances, for the sake of peace, that the ordination should rather be held in another church.

I am, Sir, &c.,

PERUVIAN EXPORT OF ALPACA.

70 the Editor of the Hereld.

Sin,—I proceed, in continuation of my former letter, which you inserted in your paper of the 10th instant, to answer the second question which I stated had been saked—Is it probable that Peru and Bolivia will be able to supply the increasing demand for alpaca wool?

ce auss to supply the increasing demand in Europe of sipaca wool, I am of opinion the number of alpacas in Feru has considerably decreased; in this opinion numerous influential proprietors of estates in the interior of Peru not only concur, but assure me is a fact; I have the assurance to same effect from the lessees of the "tithes," that are annually let at auction in the capital of each province. It is incredible the amount of robbery, cruelty, and imposition the poor, docile, and honest Indian of Peru is subjected to from all in authority over him. The Sub-Prefects of Provinces, Governors of Districts, Justices of the Peace (Juces de Paz.), Curates, Alcaydes—almost all, under intimidation of one sort or the other, most scandalously rob the indefensive Indian of his miserable means of subsistence. I write in this manner, as I am thoroughly convinced that it unfortunately is but the truth. Several exemplary curates, to my knowledge, have resigned their cursery rather than suffer the samonymees they were subjected to by civil and military authorities in their district, for reclasing to co-operate with them to rob the Indian. There have been, and no doubt where are still, several parties who try to stop this wholesade robbery, this destruction of the element most essential to the well-being of the industry of those rich, misgoverned, and most unfortunate committee. With what result? They are immediately pointed out as partie sopposed to the Government—have been subjected to fines, imprisonment, and banishment—finding that-self-precervation demanded all their attention, the Indian has been abandoned to the tades mercies of self-named partisans of each succeeding Government of the time being, who calculate on making a good thing out of six months' or a year's tenure of office that has no salary to it, and to of this which "regalition" are made to such as may, by course of events, have it in their power to influence them. I have, on several occasions, from 1842 to 1850, been witness to how contracts of sipaca wool

ting Spec the

the requisite number of llamas for the carriage of the wool to its destination. Any resistance on part of Indians to supply the wool and llamas for its carriage is met by the Governador by imposition of most harrassing gratuitous service to the State, such as repairs of roads, foot postmen, domestic servitude; and often by sending the party guilty of desiring to do what he thought fit with his own, as a recruit to first regiment at hand, with "official" recommends atton to commandant thereof, that effectually prevents the Indian for a long time, and often for ever, again entertaining the dengerous and terbulent ideas of opposing the wishes of his Governador. Do not suppose that the above is a sketch of an exception to the generality of those in authority over the Peruvian and Bolivian Indian—far, very far from it; it is indeed the rule that actuates the conduct of sub-prefect to turnkey downwards, in all the provinces of the intervity.

I have several times made extensive rounds with the object of purchasing alpaces wool direct from the time of trance with.

I have several times made extensive rounds with the object of purchasing alpaces wool direct from the fit in the state of the following dialogue illustrates the result:

Q. Well, Tata, how much wool will you sell me next Christmas? You see I've come a long journey: bring pleaty of money; I will pay a good price.

A. The wool is not mine. The Governador has sent 26 dollars for 2 quintals; the Jurz de Paz, 12

Q. But if you nave not the woot to give, not not you manage?

A. They shear all our alpacas; and if there is not wool enough they call us thieves and rogues, and put us in prison until we pay them the defect, at price they had contracted for to the "stranger," and if we have not the money, take our sheep, alpacas, Damas, &c., at their own price, to make up the amount.

I have seen many—s great many—stancius, or Indian homesteads, surrounded by Books or the amount. A stranger of the contract and plenty abounding. I have gone he come the contract and plenty abounding. I have gone he come abundance of cattle, have made inquiries as to the cause. The invariable reply was that such and such former abundance of cattle, have made inquiries as to the cause. The invariable reply was that such and such former well-to-do Indian had with his family abandoned his estancis, to wander—my informer knew not where, or cared not to tell me; that his cattle and flocks had been taken from him, and sold to pay those whose claims on him for alpaca wool he could not meet.

I for several years possessed one of the two wool presses then in Jecus, and for two years was without a competitor; and consequently all the wool shipped at the port of Arica passed through my hands. The Indians delivered it by weight. I cannot remember a single instance of the amount delivered tallying in weight with the quantity alleged to be sent; although I invariably found on weighing the pressed bales a month or so afterwards, on redelivery to owners, an augmentation of fully two per cent. (this is accounted for by a greater humidity in the atmosphere near the coast than in the higher grounds where the wool is grown). The poor carrier, on his return, was made answerable for the deficiency, and with greater injustice even, if consideration is taken that in although the high price paid for alpaca wool has stimulated several large proprietors of estates to here also have a summer of the seen of Alpacas that former have a summer of the province of Alpacas that fo

WHERLER and WILSON'S PAMILY SEWING WACHINES.—The subscribers beg to inform the public that they have been appointed AGANTA for the SALE of these celebrated machines.
The unanimous favour which has attended the introduction of WHEELER and WILSON'S PAMILY SEWING MACHINE throughout America, and also in the adjacent colonies, is sufficient evidence of its accellence. It is needless to say that this meet useful instrument is respirily becoming a domestic institution; the fact is recognised by its successful use in blousands of families in every rank of life.

In abirt manufactories it has become indisponsable. In dress making, quilting, ornamental stitching, do., it is equally efficient for perferning its duties with a rapidity, sace, precision, and beauty, that so other meets on equal; the work is also of the most durable kind. It is simple of construction, and consequently fire from derangement and need of rapairs.

The agents, who purchased this carge, via.—Mesers.
Lyall, Still, and Co.—attals in their advices that the teas, ex Wilhelmine, are the finest that have left China fer a long period, and are quite equal to the choicest picked teas taken for the London market.

That they were unable to celect a carge in Canton, socording to the quality ordered, but successed in securing nearly the whole of the carge at Foo Chow, and filled up the balance with the finest teas of the new crop precurable at Canton.

The undersigned have therefore every confidence in assuring shippers to the adjoining colonies, and the trade in general, that they will have an opportunity of selecting teas at this sale, of a class that rarely counse to this market, and unsurpassed by any previous shipments.

After the above will be soid,

To Woolstaplers, Speculators, and Merchants

M ESSRS. W. DEAN and CO. have re ceived instructions from the proprietor to sell by public auction (saless previously disposed of by private contract), on MONDAY, 15th October, at 11 o'cick, All that magnificent property at Cleveland, known as the fallmongering establishment which has produced the far-famed A. and S. wool.

fallmongering establishment which has produced the far-famed A. and S. wool.

The property contains 111 acrea, a great portion of which fenced in, together with about 15 acres of swamp, not included in the above measurement. Upon the land has been erected a large weal-stere, two meat bouses, lined with brich, bulling shed, large shed for tanning; ever-seer's cettage, and six buts for the mes; also soak and wash pans. The whole conveniently arranged, and capable of felmengering any quantity of akins. It will be seen from the plan that there are several ponds upon the property, which have perpendicular banks of great depth, sea afford a newer-failing supply of the purset water. The distance from the landing-place at the Bay is no more than one mile, and the new road from Brisbane to Cleveland Poist, which has just been made, and the cresks bridged, passes through the property.

The auctioneers feel that in having said this much, they have pointed out all that is necessary to command the attention of the weelstapler; but, besides the pacular advantage that this property effers for the continuance of the business of follomogering, it has higher attractions to the merchant and speculator, since it is clear that Cluriand must before long become the chief part of Queensland. No dredging machine could by any possibility ever clean the ber to the Brisbane River, and even should the jeniousy of the capital prevent the immediate location of the Ports of Cleveland, no great length of time can e-apse before the inhabitants of Inswich and the settlers of the interior will awahe from their apathy to employ this harbour. Even now, and in anticipation of the Riley textite.

Lot 2.—Estate of Waterfield, on the Bremer River.

Lot 2.—Estate of Waterfield, on the Bremer River. The estate consists of 151 acree, having 25 chains frontage to the River Brusbane, and a like frontage to the high read between Brisbane and Ipswich, and distant only six miles from the latter place. About 100 acres of the land is rich black soil, lightly limbered, and the remainder is good graving land. The whole is securely fenced, and subdivided into fine paddecks. A chain of waterholes runs through the property, being the only permanent water within a considerable distance. Twenty-three acres are cleared and atumped, and are now under onliviation with casts beirg, sorgum arrowroot, and lucerne. The dwalling house, which is beautifully situated on the bank of the river, is built of hardwood, and contains six good rooms, with verandah on three sides. There is a detached kitchen, servants' rooms, and store, with verandah the whole length. These premiess are well and faithfully built, and cost over £700. There are, in addition, two shalles, three stoch yards, shingled dairy, milking shed, and east pen, with pigstles, and consist of a large wool-store, 30 feat x 50, all of hardwood; pulling shed and sweathouse, with soaking are dwashing p ns, together with five buts for the men. N.B. The present tenant is willing to continue a lease of the property.

The shove properties are offered for unreserved sale , and will positively be knocked down to the highest bidder.

Title unquestionable.—Terms at sale.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public suction, at the Rooms, Pittstreet, at 11 o'clock, on WEDNESDAY, 36th September, That comfortable and substantial house and step, being No. 16th, South Mead Road, between Sourke and Crown streets, and now in the occupation of Mr. Land, plumber, containing shop, six rooms, and kitchen.

This property, altuate in one of the most thriving theroughfares in the city, and in a position where tenants are always to be had, is in the market for bona fide sale, and to any one in search of an investment where a angel income may be relied upon, it is an opportunity not to be lost. It is sufficient to remind the public that in no part of the city has property declined in value less than on the Senth Head Road, and it is but seldom that a property in this locality can be obtained.

FORT CURTIS DISTRICT, QUEENSUAND.

Terms liberal.

M ORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pittstreet, at It o'clock, on TUEBDAY, 3nd October, 1200, more or less, fine wool full-fleeced sheep, together with THE THORN-HILL STATION, comprising the two blocks, Casellis and Rooney, consisting of good open country, well watered, and capable of depasturing 15,000 sheep.

The improvements are good, and consist of a shingled cottage, with store and kitchen, also shingled; woolshed and sheeherds hat, shingled buildings, and paddock of about 80 acres.

"." Working borses, team of builcoks and dray, stores, fee, to be taken at a valuation.

The ha bove is particularly worthy the notice of neighbouring squatters. Parties on the look out for unstocked stations to the northword would find this a good opportunity, as the quantity of sheep to be sold with the station bears no comparison to the grazing capabilities, and they would have the advantage of getting the runs with improvements made, and the country ready for stocking, or as a fattening run for Cattle, it is well worth attention, and all within about 20 miles of water carriage.
